

The Fossilisation Process

Step 1: A dinosaur dies and is buried before the remains are destroyed.

Step 2: Layers of Sediment build up and press down on the remains.

Step 3: Dissolved minerals fill small spaces in the bones. Pressure and chemical reactions eventually turn it into rock and the bones into fossils.

Step 4: The fossils remain in the rock until uncovered.

